

I'm a passionate believer in the inherent creativity possessed by all people and our inherent ability if it's not clouded by convention—to appreciate aesthetic beauty in all forms, whether we like it or not.

The beauty of a woman's smile is what she wears. Her figure, her accessories, or the way she carries herself are all secondary to the smile that radiates from her. The smile is her true beauty. The smile is her true beauty. The smile is her true beauty.

The beauty of a woman is not in the clothes she wears, the figure that she carries, or the way she combs her hair. The beauty of a woman is seen in her eyes, because that is the doorway to her heart, the place where love resides. True beauty in a woman is reflected in her soul.

It's a precious treasure in the vibrant creativity possessed by all people and an inherent ability if it's not created by someone - it appears rather like beauty in all forms, whether we like it or not.
